WEATHER

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

A weak frontal system will bring light rain and snow through early morning today. A second front will produce another brief episode of rain and snow on Wednesday.

Medford Weather:

A weak occluded front is moving inland this morning and brings areas of showers inland with snow falling down to around 1000 to 1500 feet elevation in valleys West of the Cascades. This evening and tonight, a ridge builds across the area with a stronger and moister front remaining offshore. As this front nears the coast tonight into Wednesday morning, winds are expected to increase along the coast and over the mountains and light rain and snow will spread inland. Snow levels are expected around 3000 to 4000 feet from the Cascades West tonight and Wednesday morning.

Reno Weather:

A quieter weather pattern will be in store this week with cold and below average temperatures through midweek. A few brush-by disturbances may provide snow showers on Tuesday and more so by Wednesday. High pressure will then build for the remainder of the week with drier conditions and warming temperatures expected into the weekend.

San Francisco Weather:

Two weak weather systems are expected to move through the district between now and midweek. The first will spread light rain chances Southward over the area today and the second will do similarly Wednesday and Wednesday evening. High pressure will then build along the West Coast during the latter part of the week and into the weekend resulting in dry weather along with a warming trend.

Sacramento Weather:

Two weak weather systems will move through the region this week, the first today and the second on Wednesday. An extended period of dry weather will then commence continuing into next week.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Hanford Weather:

Except for a few possible light mountain showers today and again on Wednesday night into Thursday expect mainly dry and mild conditions with temperatures warming several degrees through the week.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

High pressure will bring dry conditions and mostly clear skies through the week. Max temps will remain below normal through Friday and will then soar to above normal during the weekend.

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

There will be patchy frost in some of the inland valleys early this morning. Otherwise high pressure aloft off the California coast will strengthen bringing dry weather and a warming trend through early next week. There will be periods of mostly weak offshore flow at times strongest on Friday with gusty northeast winds near the coastal foothills.

Southeast California Weather:

Rather cold conditions will remain in place through the middle of the week with near freezing temperatures during the mornings in many desert communities. High pressure will slowly edge into the region late this week allowing for some moderation of temperatures but still below normal. The dry conditions will continue while warmer weather finally returns late in the weekend into early next week.
